

CRASH DAYS 2009: Call-for-Papers!

On 10 and 11 March 2009 the curtain will rise for the first CRASH DAYS in Stuttgart.

Experts and users from the field of crash testing and vehicle safety are equally invited to this special 2-day congress. A new stage for both, concentrated information and relaxed exchange of experiences as well, will be created in the unique atmosphere of the Palladium Theatre in Stuttgart's SI-Centrum. The event will be perfectly embedded into the fifth "MessTec & Sensor Masters" show where leading companies in measurement and sensor technology will present their newest products and developments as every year in early spring-time.

The first of the two days will especially address executives from crash testing and other R&D departments with new technologies and optimization strategies for all relevant processes in the crash lab, in order to cope with the increasing demands for efficiency and shorter development cycles. In contrast the second day will offer more practical lessons and hands-on trainings for testing and dummy technicians in order to provide valuable advice for best practice in the daily routine.

Call-for-papers: Experts from crash-related companies and institutions who would like to contribute their own lectures to the CRASH DAYS 2009 are invited to e-mail a draft proposal to the organizer's office by 31 October 2008. Please come and visit us under www.crash-days.com.
