Termination of Denton Acquisition by HgCapital

Dear European Denton customers,

As you are well aware, on December 5, 2006, an agreement was reached under which clients of HgCapital, a European Private Equity investor, intended the acquisition of the Denton Companies.

HgCapital acquired First Technology Safety and Analysis (FTSA) in the past year.

As of Wednesday, June 13, 2007 all negotiations between the Denton Companies and HgCapital regarding a potential acquisition of Denton have been terminated. The European Commission has been notified by HgCapital of their decision to end their efforts toward the purchase of the Denton Companies.

This decision was based on the investigations of the European Union in May this year, in which the European Union expressed their concerns about a monopoly supplier for crash test dummies and crash dummy load cells.

Consequently, the ownership of all Denton Companies (Denton ATD, Inc., Robert A. Denton, Inc. and Denton COE GmbH) has not changed at all.

Since the purchase of ASTC and the establishment of Denton COE GmbH in Heidelberg, Germany, Denton as undertaken strong efforts to improve the quality standards for all products and services.

We would like to thank all our customers for the cooperation and the trust in the Denton Companies and we promise you to spend all our effort to get the best products und services to your needs.

For further information, please do not hesitate to contact us or your local Denton representative.

Sincerely yours,
Denton COE GmbH

Thomas Warkentin
